

RESIDENT PARKING ONLY RESTRICTIONS IN THE LOWER GREENVILLE AREA

Effective July 1, 2008, more streets in the Lower Greenville area will become RESIDENT PARKING ONLY (RPO) Zones.

This change means only the people who live on that street AND have a City of Dallas RPO hangtag will be permitted to park there on weekend evenings (see complete list at right).

The Belmont Neighborhood Association and the residents petitioned the City of Dallas for these restrictions. The Belmont Neighborhood Association pays for the RPO signs.

We took this action in order to protect our properties, our families and our quality of life from the noise, traffic and trash created by people patronizing Lower Greenville bars and restaurants looking for parking spaces in the surrounding neighborhoods. Our residential streets are for the use of our friends and neighbors, not bar and restaurant patrons.

Resident Parking Only signs were installed on new RPO streets (see the list of all RPO streets on the right) this week. The City will allow a one-week grace period before ticketing for any parking violations in new RPO zones only.

During the Fourth of July weekend, vehicles illegally parked in the new RPO zones will receive a written warning; vehicles illegally parked in other RPO zones will be issued citations.

During all successive weekends in July, vehicles illegally parked in all RPO zones will be cited and towed by the Dallas Police Department and/or Parking Enforcement to the Police Impound Lot.

Please make arrangements to find another parking place the next time you visit the Lower Greenville area. The bars and restaurants are required to provide a minimum number of free parking spaces to their patrons. They provide valet parking services for a fee, and there are a number of paid self-parking lots along the avenue. If you have any questions about patron parking, please direct them to the owners and managers of your favorite bar or restaurant, not the neighborhood association.
